A Craighouse® Christmas 2012

Christmas has gotten extremely secular over the years, but people still love the carols that proclaim the birth of Jesus Christ with joy to the world.

After just one of the best buffet dinners ever at Craighouse®, eighteen or nineteen of us carpooled to this beautiful house on the intracoastal in Pompano Beach, FL, all decorated for Christmas.

On the way a few sprinkles threatened the plan, especially since we were bringing electrical equipment and Pastor Jim was playing trumpet and Steve Craig was playing a stand-up string bass. It was touch-n-go there for quite a few minutes, but by the time we got to the house, the sprinkles ceased and didn't return until the cars were fully loaded to head back to Craighouse® for dessert.

We had a wonderful time singing Christmas carols to the 100-150 people who came along to see this house and then stayed to listen to our Craighouse Carolers.

We've been going out Christmas caroling in the streets for 18 years. We call it "doing" church instead of "having" church. Each time has its own stories in various neighborhoods. Caroling this year was on Sunday December 16th. The exaltation of Christ thrilled everyone there, from toddlers to the young in heart. What a joyous time!

Thanks to you who make these special events possible.
